2 Graduating Rangers, Aware of Their Burden

(NY Times) First Lt. Shaye Haver, an Apache attack helicopter pilot who on Friday will be one of the first women to graduate from the Army's elite Ranger School, wants to remain an aviator. But she takes away weighty lessons from her grueling Ranger training: "Your mind can take a whole lot more than your body," she said. "I think I would be crazy to say" that the thought of quitting never occurred, she said on Thursday in her first public appearance since completing the exhausting nine-week course of little sleep and constant hiking with backpacks, water, weapons and other gear that weighed more than 100 pounds. But, Lieutenant Haver said, "the ability to look around to my peers and see that they were sucking just as bad as I was kept me going." First Lt. Shaye Haver running an obstacle course at the Army's Ranger School in Fort Benning, Ga. She is to graduate on Friday. A female student at Ranger School held a position with her team in an exercise this month at Camp James E. Rudder, Eglin Air Force Base. Two women are set to graduate this week. The other woman poised to make history by graduating Friday, Capt. Kristen Griest, said that if the Army ever allowed women to take the final step into combat, she may want to join the Special Forces. Captain Griest admitted she felt "internal pressure" over how her performance could affect future opportunities for women. Yet she said their accomplishment showed "what they can expect from women in the military, that we can handle things physically and mentally on the same level as men, and that we can deal with the same stresses and training." And Captain Griest was blunt about what should never happen: "No woman that I know wants to go to Ranger School if they change the standards, because then it degrades" the designation, she said.

North Korea Orders Troops on War Footing After Exchanging Fire with South

(BBC) North Korean leader Kim Jong-un has ordered his frontline troops to be on a war footing, after an exchange of fire with the South across their heavily fortified border, state media report. The KCNA report said Mr. Kim declared a "semi-state of war" at an emergency meeting late Thursday. It threatened action unless Seoul ends its anti-Pyongyang border broadcasts. The North often uses fierce rhetoric when tensions rise and it has made similar declarations before. The BBC's South Korea correspondent Steve Evans says that although this ritual of aggression often sees such language escalate to the firing of ammunition, this time the rhetoric is fiercer and artillery shells are now in use. KCNA reported that Mr. Kim had ordered that troops be "fully ready for any military operations at any time" from 17:00 Friday local time (08:30 GMT), at the emergency meeting of the central military commission. South Korea's Vice Defense Minister Baek Seung-joo said that 11 sites with loudspeakers for the anti-Pyongyang broadcasts are likely to be targets. South Korea's Yonhap news agency, citing a government source, said that North Korea appeared to be preparing to fire missiles. The North often conducts missile tests to show displeasure at South Korea, or in protest at US-South Korean military drills.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Generally westerly flow across northwest California will help maintain a quiet weather pattern through the weekend. A subtle drop in temperatures will be observed across the interior while plenty of low clouds and fog hug the coast.

Medford Weather:

There is lots of smoke over the area. The thickest smoke is over western Siskiyou County and is emanating from the Gasquet Complex in Del Norte County. There are several other very smoky fire complexes to the south of that one. Smoke plumes are also streaming from the stouts

Reno Weather:

Dry conditions with above normal temperatures will continue through this weekend. Afternoon zephyr breezes are expected today and Friday, with lighter winds on Saturday. Haze and smoke from large wildfires in California and the Pacific Northwest will drift across for the next few days. A cooling trend with breezy conditions is likely later next week.

San Francisco Weather:

A deep marine layer will continue to support coastal clouds spreading inland during the overnight and early morning hours. Otherwise, dry weather conditions will persist along with temperatures near seasonal averages into early next week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Dry weather with near normal temperatures can be expected through early next week.

Hanford Weather:

Dry weather can be expected over Central California for the next several days. Temperatures will remain near to slightly above normal as the upper- level ridge slowly strengthens through the weekend into the first part of next week then weakens by midweek as low pressure approaches the Pacific Northwest.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A persistent weather pattern is expected through this weekend with near normal high temperatures and night through morning low clouds across coast and valleys. High pressure will strengthen early next week driving temperatures up especially across inland locations through at least mid-week.

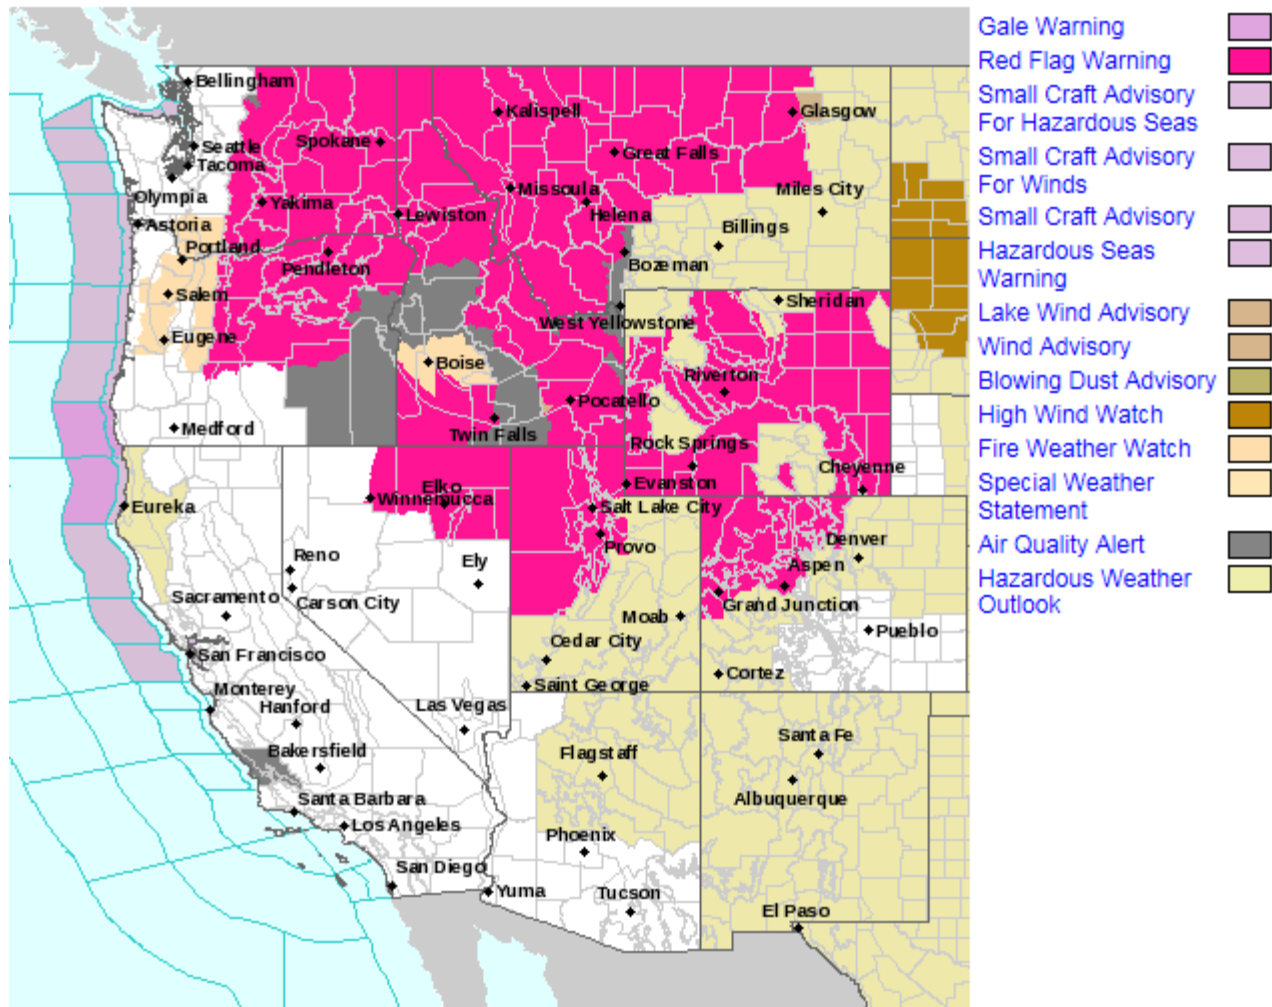

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure to the east will expand westward bringing a warming trend and gradually shallower marine layer through early next week with high temperatures remaining slightly above average for the rest of next week. Southwest California will be on the western edge of monsoonal moisture with a slight chance of afternoon and early evening thunderstorms on Tuesday and Wednesday for the mountains and deserts.

Southeast California Weather:

The monsoon high will settle across the Four Corners Monday resulting in better rain chances across the lower deserts. Drier conditions will return by midweek along with near to above normal temperatures.

Evacuations/Shelters:

- Mandatory Evacuation Areas:
 - The Hume Lake Christian Conference was evacuated 08/18/15. Per the Cal OES Law Duty Officer (LDO) evacuation was accomplished in less than 2 ½ hours due in significant part to prior planning between Fresno Sheriff and the Camp Staff. The group of 750 to 1000 people were evacuated to a sister Church in Fresno for sheltering.
 - There are 250 mandatory evacuations in the National Park Campgrounds in the immediate area of Hume Lake Christian Camp.
 - There has been an evacuation of 32 private residences, believed to be all vacation homes in the Big Meadow and Heart Meadow Neighborhood.
 - Approximately 1,500 campers in several Kings Canyon National Park Campgrounds located along 10 Mile Rd have been placed under mandatory evacuation.

Major Concerns:

- The California Highway Patrol has also moved the road closure, which had been located at the intersection of Highway 180 and Hume Lake Road. The new road closure now sits further south on Highway 180 at Grant Grove Tree (approximately 2 miles north of the Hwy. 180 and Hwy. 198 interchange). The roadway will remain closed until authorities determine it is safe to reopen. The Sheriff's Office wants to make the public aware that no one will be allowed to enter the Hume Lake area; people will only be allowed to exit.
- Per CUEA, PG&E critical facilities and distribution assets are no longer in a high risk category for threats to power serving Central California. CAISO has reviewed PG&E facility locations that may be impacted by the fire and none of the locations would compromise the grid in any capacity. There would be no brownouts if these sites were impacted.
